

Albany Democratic Club General Meeting

Albany Library

September 19, 2019

7 p.m.

- Club Vice President Brian Beall started the meeting shortly after 7 p.m.
 - Attendees discussed possible topics that could drive attendance to club meetings, including local topics that could also drive participation in local government. We discussed how to increase exposure for the club, including backing local initiatives, supporting local issues and making endorsements.
 - After introductions of attendees, Dana Dean spoke on helping more democratic women get elected.
 - Dean is a graduate of Emerge California — an organization dedicated to training Democratic women to run for office — and is president of the California County Boards of Education and sits on the California School Boards Association board of directors.
 - Dean noted the higher up in the decision tree you go, the fewer women are involved. This is what Emerge is addressing: 31 percent of state representation of California is women.
 - Besides Emerge, other groups support women candidates, including Close the Gap, a group dedicated to getting women elected to state positions.
 - Emerge California works to get Democratic women elections through an intensive training program on how to run a campaign.
 - Any woman who has thought about running for office should participate.
 - Next, we look at straw poll results from the Solano Stroll.
 - Then, we look at membership and club funding.
 - Finally, city councilmember Nick Pilch looked at recent city government activities and initiatives.
 - Vice President Beall adjourned the meeting at 8:55 p.m.

July 18, 2019

7 p.m.

The meeting started with brief opening remarks from Bryan Marten and introductions of attendees.

The members in attendance then voted to fill the vacant seats for vice president and officer at large for the club. Brian Beall was elected vice president of the club to fill the seat vacated by Yali Lincroft.

Climate action

Eric Larson, a member of the the city's Climate Action Committee and member of the Albany Climate Action Coalition -- a grassroots public group -- started with an overview of the coalition and the differences between the two climate groups.

Eric discussed how the city's Climate Action Committee acts as an advisory to the Albany City Council. The committee also works on the Climate Action Plan 2.0, a guidance climate-action document for the city.

Eric also discussed the city's carbon-free Albany website. Eric looked at the EBCE, or East Bay Community Energy, and Albany's participation in the initiative.

Finally, Eric talked on Albany's Climate Action Plan and the work that goes into creating it and what the long-range goals are for the city.

Berkeley Councilmember Kate Harrision talked about this week's passage of the Berkeley ordinance to remove natural gas from new construction and how a similar ordinance might work in Albany to create new all-electric buildings. She looked at how it is already happening in Berkeley, including on campus. The ordinance also creates incentives to convert to electric. Seattle, Boston, Arcata are among the 50 cities that have contacted Berkeley about guidance on implementing a similar decarbonization ordinance in their area.

JP Ross, a senior director with East Bay Community Energy, a local electricity supplier in Alameda County, including Albany, with the goal of providing cleaner energy and reinvesting profits back into the county.

JP discussed specific goals, initiatives, and programs for bringing renewable energy and electrification in buildings and vehicles and making communities carbon-free.

City government events

City councilmember Nick Pilch and committee members Bryan Marten, Preston Jordan, and TTKKHousingPerson discussed recent city activities and decisions.

Club president Bryan Marten adjourned the meeting at 9:00 p.m.

7 p.m.

The meeting started with brief opening remarks from Bryan Marten and introductions of attendees.

Bryan Marten reported that Julia Chang Frank intends to present at the club's July meeting on her discussions with local ethnic and economic groups.

Bryan Marten then reported on the recent California state party convention, which he attended. At the event, Rusty Hicks was elected California State Democratic Party Chairman.

Following a question on how the state democratic convention, the group discussed the state democratic party, its recent convention, and how state party delegates are appointed. City commission member Bryan Marten gave community updates on Albany Parks, Recreation & Open Space Commission activities.

City commission member Preston Jordan gave community updates on Traffic & Safety Commission activities.

City councilmember Nick Pilch discussed recent city council activities and decisions.

Adena Ishii, the president of our Berkeley, Albany, and Emeryville chapter of the League of Women Voters, spoke on the case for lowering the voting age.

She discussed the history of voting age.

The move to lowering the vote is taking hold in a handful of cities across the country, including Boulder, Colorado, and Washington, D.C.

She addressed common arguments against the issue, including teens don't care to vote and don't have the decision-making skills.

She presented data on reported voting ages from 1980 to 2016 and examined factors that can drive political interest and engagement, including gun violence.

She also looked at the development of cognitive abilities for 16 year olds and they ability to make decisions at that age.

She then discussed how voting at 16 can occur with support and encouragement to vote.

She also looked at Berkeley's efforts to allow 16 and 17 year olds to vote in school-board elections.

And she examined the difficulty of allowing 16 years to vote by state.

As part of the discussion, she looked at the difficulty of having two ballots for elections: a limited for under 18 and a full for over 18.

Albany Democratic Club members in attendance held a straw poll and voted to recommend that the city council, city committees, and school board -- investigate adopting Vote 16 in Albany.

Bryan Marten adjourned the meeting at 9:00 p.m.

7 p.m.

- ❑ The meeting started with brief opening remarks from Bryan Marten and introductions of attendees.
- ❑ Brandon Harami, Kimberly Ellis' Bay Area Regional Campaign Director for California Party Chair, spoke on why Kimberly Ellis is running for party chair in the upcoming special election.
- ❑ Her four priorities:
 - ❑ Address the problems caused by the former party leadership and establish policies that will fix the culture of the party.
 - ❑ Hold on to and expand our gains from the 2016 election and get more Democrats elected to city, county and state seats.
 - ❑ With the presidential primary coming up, we need to get our house in order to be ready for the upcoming state elections.
 - ❑ Make sure we are using our state party organization to win back the White House and work to get officials elected in other states.
- ❑ Dean Wallace, District Director for Assemblywoman Buffy Wicks, gave an update on what the Assemblywoman has been working on in Sacramento, including bills she has voted for and sponsored.
 - ❑ Bills sponsored by the Assemblywoman that have passed the appropriations committee and are moving forward:
 - ❑ Three bills in the works in the CalFresh area:
 - ❑ AB-1022 California Antihunger Response and Employment Training Act of 2019 Remove harm of the federal 3-month CalFresh time limit and related work requirements
